Reasons

- 1 It is not permitted to use a wastewater treatment unit for more than one dwelling. The proposed development, by virtue of the fact that one Biocycle unit is proposed for up to four dwelling, would be prejudicial to public health.
- 2 The site is too small for the proposed development. SR6:1991 (The National Standards Authority of Ireland Standards for Septic Tank Systems) states that each site should be no less than 2000 square metres where groundwater is afforded good natural protection and no less than 3000 square metres where groundwater is afforded limited natural protection. Water sampling test results of groundwater from wells in the locality have indicated poor groundwater quality. The proposal would therefore be prejudicial to public health.
- 3 Ballymana Lane in its present condition is inadequate to serve the vehicular/pedestrian traffic that would be generated by the development and would thereby endanger public safety by reason of a traffic hazard.
- 4 Development of this kind would set precedent for further extension of the paved access road and for other access roads off Ballymana Lane. This would lead to the demand for the uneconomic provision of services. The proposal is therefore contrary to the proper planning and development of the area.
- 5 Section 2.3.1ii of the 1998 South Dublin County Development Plan states, 'Within areas designated with Zoning Objective B ("to protect and improve rural amenity and to provide for the development of agriculture") dwellings will only be permitted on suitable sites where, (i) applicants can establish a genuine need to reside in proximity to their employment; (such employment being related to the rural community), or (ii) applicants have close family ties with the rural community'.

While the applicant has stated that she is from the area, no documentary evidence has been submitted to support this. As such, to grant planning permission in this instance would be inconsistent with the proper planning and development of the area.

- 6 The height and suburban design of the proposed dwelling would conflict with the 'Guidelines on Siting and Design of Rural Dwellings' as set out in Appendix D of the South Dublin County Development Plan, 1998. The proposed development would therefore visually detract from the character of the rural area and would contravene materially the Development Plan zoning objective for the area which is "to protect and/or improve residential amenity".
