LEINSTER CLUB SHC FINAL BALLYHALE v CLOUGH-B

EONINLY MESSING

EONINLY fooled his parents once - but he was never going to trick them twice.

By JASON BYRNE
GAA WRITER

The Kilkenny forward, 21, was crowned Young Hurler of the Year last weekend for the second successive season.

When he won the prize for the first time in February, he knew what was coming but gave nothing away at home.

The 2020 PwC All-Star ceremony was held virtually and Cody watched with his family, sitting in his track suit and staring quiet as Marty Morrissey announced him as the winner and a pre-recorded interview popped up on the screen.

While his side bowed out of the Championship at the All-Ireland semi-final stage in both years, Cody was up for the prize again during another stripped-back ceremony last Friday night.

But his parents were on to him this time. He smiled: "This year they kind of had me caught out."

"But last year I didn't say a thing, I could have if I wanted to but I kept it quiet."

"I kind of said, 'You know what, it would be worth it with everything going on just to see their faces.'"

"We sat in the sitting room waiting for it to come on and I remember my mam, they kind of thought I had won it, but they thought it was live."

"I was sitting in the sitting room in my track suit and all these lads were in their suits and were talking to Marty there and sure then it came up, 'Young Hurler of the Year.'"

"And the next thing I popped up and they couldn't believe it, they were over the moon. Young Hurler of the Year... but I think they you are like, 'Well done'. It is a great achievement but you are achieving it and kind of celebrating it on your own."

"You're watching the All-Stars for 20 years of your life and watching brilliant hurlers go up and collect their awards and listening to what they are saying."

"And for me, my turn to win it, sitting at home on your own and having to keep it quiet for the few days until they find out on the telly, it's a completely different experience."

"Last Friday we were actually training so I came home to a load of congratulations."

"But if it wasn't for the last second we could have been gone from the championship and it could have been a disastrous weekend, it would have taken everything out of it."

All eyes are now on Sunday's Leinster final against Laois underdogs Clough-Ballacolla at Croke Park.

Ballyhale are gunning for their third provincial and All-Ireland titles on the bounce after the 2020 competition fell victim to Covid-19.

And Cody knows their refusal to be beaten has been vital to their success, along with a string of star men.

TJ Reid usually earns the plaudits but Cody says recent Cats retiree Joey Holden (above) deserves more acclaim.

He added: "Richie is involved in the GAA and he kind of let me know."

"You are at home and you have maybe that moment to yourself and never-say-die attitude, we are known for it, it is a tradition probably within the club and the county. The game is never over until the final whistle."

"You look at other players' strengths and you are like, 'How can I do this?' I look at what TJ does on and off the field. He is obviously the best there is and I look up to him."

"Joey Holden then, people probably don't give enough credit to. His attitude is unbelievable. I just don't think I'll ever see the likes of it again."

"He is one player who just deserves. The last day I got the goal in the last minute but they had the ball on the far side an unbelievable block."

"The winning of the game was down to Joey - just how he looks after his team-mates, himself. It is always the team first and I don't think people see that."

"It has been unbelievable what we have achieved in the last few years. We have this weekend now to prove ourselves and hopefully be Leinster champions."

IT CARLOW and Kilkenny hurler Eoin Cody spoke this week during the Electric Ireland GAA Higher Education draw in Carlow.

"Last Friday we were actually training so I came home to a load of congratulations."

REBELS ACE TO RETURN

CONOR LEHANE is back on the Cork hurling panel after not being involved in the run to the All-Ireland final in 2021.

The talented forward (left) starred in Middleton's run to club championship glory in the county this year and the Rebels have confirmed the 29-year-old has rejoined their ranks.

Meanwhile, Blarney's Mark Coleman has been named Cork captain for 2022, taking over from Patrick Horgan, while Seán O'Donoghue will be vice-captain for Kieran Kingston's side.

The Rebels will begin their 2022 league campaign against Munster rivals Clare at Pairc Uí Chaoimh on February 5 minus retired trio Eoin Cadogan, Bill Cooper and Colm Spillane.

COONEY... tradition

It takes two says Cooney

Sarsfields v Oulart-The Ballagh

By DARAGH Ó CONCHUÍR

MARIA COONEY knows that two in a row is the only way to go.

Cooney's iconic father Joe was one of the Galway hurlers that successfully defended the All-Ireland title in 1988, as was Michael 'Hopper' McGrath. Both men then went back-to-back with All-Ireland honours for their club Sarsfields in 1994.

Tomorrow, under McGrath's management, Maria can help the club's camogie team to the same feat - and she knows just how big a deal it is for the Galway champions.

Ahead of facing Wexford's Oulart-The Ballagh at UPMC Nowlan Park, she said: "Looking at those hurlers, they had their two All-Irelands back-to-back."

"Even talking to them now, they will reinforce the idea that these things are so seldom. When you get that opportunity, it doesn't matter if it's your first, third, fifth - they're not going to last forever."

"They are very short years and periods of time because someone is going to come and knock you off that pedestal. It's important to relish those days you do get to and make the most of them."

"It's such a great thing for your club to get there."

"Winning back-to-back - to be a great team, you need to try and do that."

"We won that first one and that was such a huge, huge thing for us. Getting to that again, it was never guaranteed."

Galway is so competitive - we needed to focus on getting out of our group, semi-final, county final.

"We had a very tough game against Drom & Inch in the All-Ireland semi-final, conditions weren't great. That probably took a lot out of us, it was a tough game, a very physical game, but we did get over it."

"We are absolutely up against it. Oulart-The Ballagh are absolutely incredible, probably some of the best camogie players that we have seen."

"We played Slaughtneil the last couple of years, who are a magnificent club team, and Oulart went on to beat them by seven points, so we absolutely know we have a huge challenge ahead."
