MANCHESTER UNITED will go on tour to Bangkok today without Cristiano Ronaldo after giving the Portuguese superstar more time off for family reasons.

The club still don't know if Ronaldo will be able to join the four-game, 16-day trip to Thailand and Australia amid uncertainty over his future at Old Trafford.

Ronaldo fears his hopes of quitting United are fading after the club doubled down yesterday on their assertion that he is not for sale.

United will back up that stance by including images of the 37-year-old wearing their new kit when it is officially unveiled this morning — even though he will not be on the plane to Bangkok with his team-mates hours later.

A club spokesperson con-firmed: 'Cristiano Ronaldo will not be part of the Manchester United party scheduled to depart for our pre-season tour of Thailand and Australia on Friday.

'He has been granted additional time off to deal with a family issue.

Wants out: Ronaldo

'Cristiano remains under contract with Manchester United for another season and is not for sale.

Ronaldo was due to report back for pre-season training on Monday but has been given compassionate leave by United. The player has so far missed four days of training but is said to be unhappy over suggestions he has refused to turn up, considering he had the club's permission to stay in Lisbon with partner Georgina Rodriguez and his children.

However, Ronaldo's contin-ued absence is bound to fuel speculation over his future after he told United he wants to leave and his agent Jorge Mendes held talks with several clubs.

Chelsea and Napoli have expressed an interest but Ronaldo accepts it will be difficult to find a Champions League club prepared to match his £500,000-a-week wages just a month before the new season starts.

Despite signing Tyrell Malacia and reaching a verbal agreement with Christian Eriksen, United have yet to make a breakthrough in talks with Barcelona over their top target Frenkie de Jong.
