INDEPENDENT EXPERT is ground-versatile and has consistent form over similar distances. She has top weight and is 11b higher than when third at Tipperary but her 7lb claiming lockey is back on board having wen on her at the Curragh in May. Aristovic won on easy ground at Tipperary, but is similarly ground-versatile and while raised 5lb for her win, should hold fifth-placed Cherub Rock, albeit who may be better suited by today's sounder surface. Three Laws, third in a barrier trial, was handicapped on two maiden runs but was well held at Leopardstown last month (Starsong was sixth). Similarly owned handicap debutante Scarlet Angel was well beaten at Gowran but had previously shown form at Cork. Notwithstanding ran ck on handicap debut at Leopardstown and can get involved, dropping to a smaller field in a slightly less competitive race.

At first glance, it may seem that IMPOSING SUPREME needs to go right-handed given his record at Galway and last month's victory at Bail-inrobe but his record over C&D belies that. The six-year-old has been placed on all three visits to Killarney and has twice been beaten less than a length. Tom Gibney's good servant can go close despite a 6th hike for his tatest success. Gluseppo Cassioli has only run three times on turf in 25 career starts but his third at Naas was encouraging and his rider's 7th claim will be a big help. Pierre Lapin has a big chance on his fourth of 27 in a very valuable handicap at the Curragh in May.

Hale Bopp didn't build on his Naas win last time but coming back to 1m will suit.

NOT UNCERTAIN can't beat Ark on ratings but her stable is flying and improvement may be forthcoming with headgear fitted. The Deep impact filly wasn't beaten far at Sligo and this extra furriong should be fine. Standard-setting Ark has been making the running before getting outpaced in the closing stages of her races. She's consistent but clearly vulnerable. Stablemate Honeycomb was six lengths behind Ark at the Curragh in May but has only hed two starts and could easily improve past her. The well-bred Stellar Storm, related to three winners including one at stakes level, wouldn't have to be any kind of star to take this on debut. It's been a chastening year for the Weld stable but there have been a few green shoots recently as Galway comes into view.

Paddy Tivomey took this last year with stable star La Petite Coco and can again collect the prize with SPASIBA. The son of French champion two-year-old Ultra was third to Shark Bay on debut at Cork before winning decisively at Roscommon. Using the third that day as a vard-stick, he ran to a mark of around 90 and has been given seven weeks to strengthen up further. Good Heavens was a five-length maiden winner at Leopardstown in the autumn before running creditably in a stakes race at the same venue. He should be better for his comeback third at Roscommon and his mark is some way clear of the others who have one. Willesse, who best Good Heavens in Curragh maiden last year, ran creditably when second in a small-field handicap at Ballinrobe and may be capable of better.
