

Rebel Stenson unlikely to U-turn on LIV defection

Ireland get into a tail spin and lose out to Pakistan

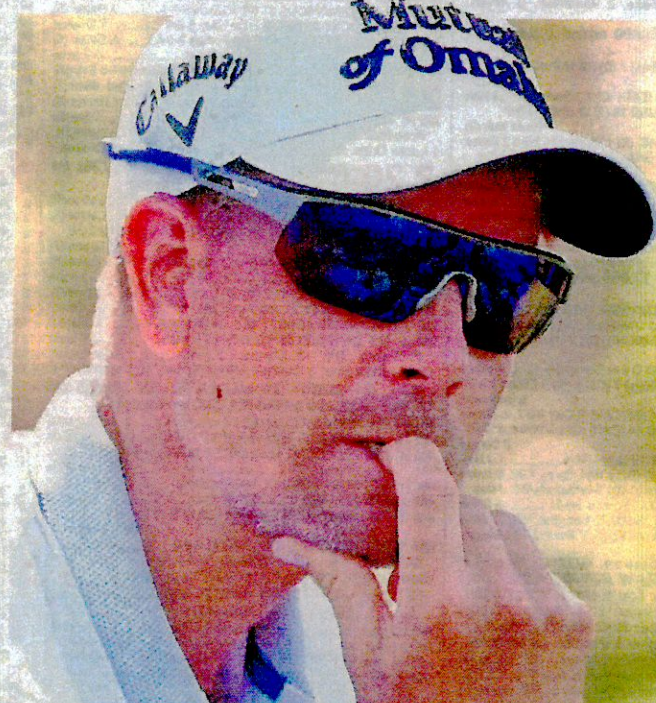

By RIATH AL-SAMARRAI

THE defection of Henrik Stenson to the Saudi-backed breakaway LIV series could be sealed within the next 48 hours.

While DP World Tour chief executive Keith Pelley has not lost hope of talking him out of the move that would cost him the captaincy of the European Ryder Cup team, it is rated as unlikely that the Swede will reject LIV.

Sportsmail understands the next batch of LIV signings will be announced tomorrow, with the expectation that the new faces will tee up for the third instalment of the series at former US President Donald Trump's Bedminster course in New Jersey next week.

Capturing 46-year-old Stenson would be a huge disruption to the DP World Tour ahead of next year's Ryder Cup in Italy and there have also been suggestions within the sport that last year's Masters champion Hideki Matsuyama has privately committed to joining Greg Norman's rebels. Most tellingly, there was also no denial from freshly crowned Open champion Cameron

Smith when he was asked after his triumph at St Andrews if he was switching from the PGA Tour, though Smith is considered unlikely

SWEDE SUCCESS

1 STENSON has won one major, the first Swedish man to do so, at the Open in 2016.

21 HE has 21 total wins, and became the first man to win both the PGA Tour's FedEx Cup (2013) and European Tour's Race to Dubai (2013 and 2016).

to join until later in the year, if at all. His fellow Australian Adam Scott is another who has been targeted.

With the player migration having plunged golf into civil war, Trump has used social media to implore players to take the Saudi money.

Trump wrote: 'All of those golfers that remain "loyal" to the very disloyal PGA will pay a big price when the inevitable merger with LIV comes, and you get nothing but a big "thank you" from PGA officials who are making millions of dollars a year.

'If you don't take the money now, you will get nothing after the merger takes place and only say how smart the original signees were.'

IRELAND'S women joined their male counterparts in losing out in a tight finish to a more fancied side. The men lost to both India and New Zealand in recent weeks when it was easier to win.

And so it was for Laura Delany's side against Pakistan in Bready last night. Having kept the opposition to 92-5 - their innings was reduced to 14 overs by a shower shortly after the start - they started aggressively.

Gaby Lewis and Rebecca Stokell hit eight boundaries as Ireland reached 55 after seven overs. But they didn't score another as Ireland struggled to get away the spinners. Stokell fell for 19 and Orla Prendergast for 10 as the run-rate mounted.

The final over descended into chaos with three wickets falling, two to run outs. Lewis was out lbw for 47 off 41 balls as Ireland's young side fell 13 runs short of their target.
