Re: First Party Appeal - Planning Application No. SD22B/0260 for Teresa Wall of 2 Willington Avenue, Templeogue, Dublin 6W.

To whom it may concern,

I wish to make a first party appeal, on behalf of my client Teresa Wall of 2 Willington Avenue, Templeogue, Dublin 6W, against a planning condition included as part of the attached granted planning permission by South Dublin County Council. The condition in question (condition no. 2) is as follows:

"2. Modifications.

Prior to the commencement of works, the applicant, developer or land owner shall obtain the written consent of the Planning Authority to revised plans, which shall incorporate all of the following modifications:

(a) The access door to the proposed structure on the western elevation shall be removed in its entirety;

REASON: In the interests of proper planning and sustainable development of the area, and to ensure that the structure is not used for separate habitable accommodation."

As outlined above, the planner has removed the access door to the west side of the new extension. While I understand that this condition was included to ensure the extension is not used as a separate habitable accommodation from the main house, the removal of the access door was unexpected. A restriction on the use of the extension is already included under Condition 4(b) of the planning permission - it is clearly stated that the main house and extension must be jointly used as a single dwelling and restricts its use as a separate dwelling.

In my client's case, this extension will be used as part of the original family home and is much needed for my client to continue to enjoy her home independently. To provide context:

- General Mobility: My client has a chronic medical condition that reduces her mobility and this will continue to progress as she gets older. This new extension is providing a much-needed ground floor bedroom, toilet/shower room and utility room that will allow her to continue to live independently at entry level within her home (refer to fig. 4).

- Ease of Access to the House and Rear Garden: The access door on the west elevation is a much-needed access point for my client to use and enjoy her garden. Her existing access door from the kitchen to the garden is on the west elevation and she uses it regularly throughout the day to perform a number of important tasks (refer to fig. 1 and fig. 2). It will give her easy access to her bins from her kitchen and new utility room. The bins are stored on the west elevation behind a cherished raised flower bed that was built by her late husband to conceal the bins from view (refer to fig. 3).

The door will also provide easy access from her washing machine which will be located in her new utility room to her washing line. It will be used regularly throughout the day to let her beloved dog out into the garden.

The removal of this door will make these day-to-day tasks more difficult for her to do independently. If this access door is removed on the west elevation my clients only point of access to the rear garden will be through the dining room. She will have to navigate her washing and bins from the utility and kitchen through the dining room out to the garden via a sliding door - a door which she does not currently use.

- Means of Escape: Another important area of concern is if this door is removed, my client's bedroom will become an inner room from the kitchen and in the event of a fire, her means of escape will be through the kitchen. The kitchen is a higher risk area for a fire and should a fire start in the kitchen my clients only means of escape would be through a window and due to her mobility issues this would be next to impossible for her to manage should an emergency situation arise.

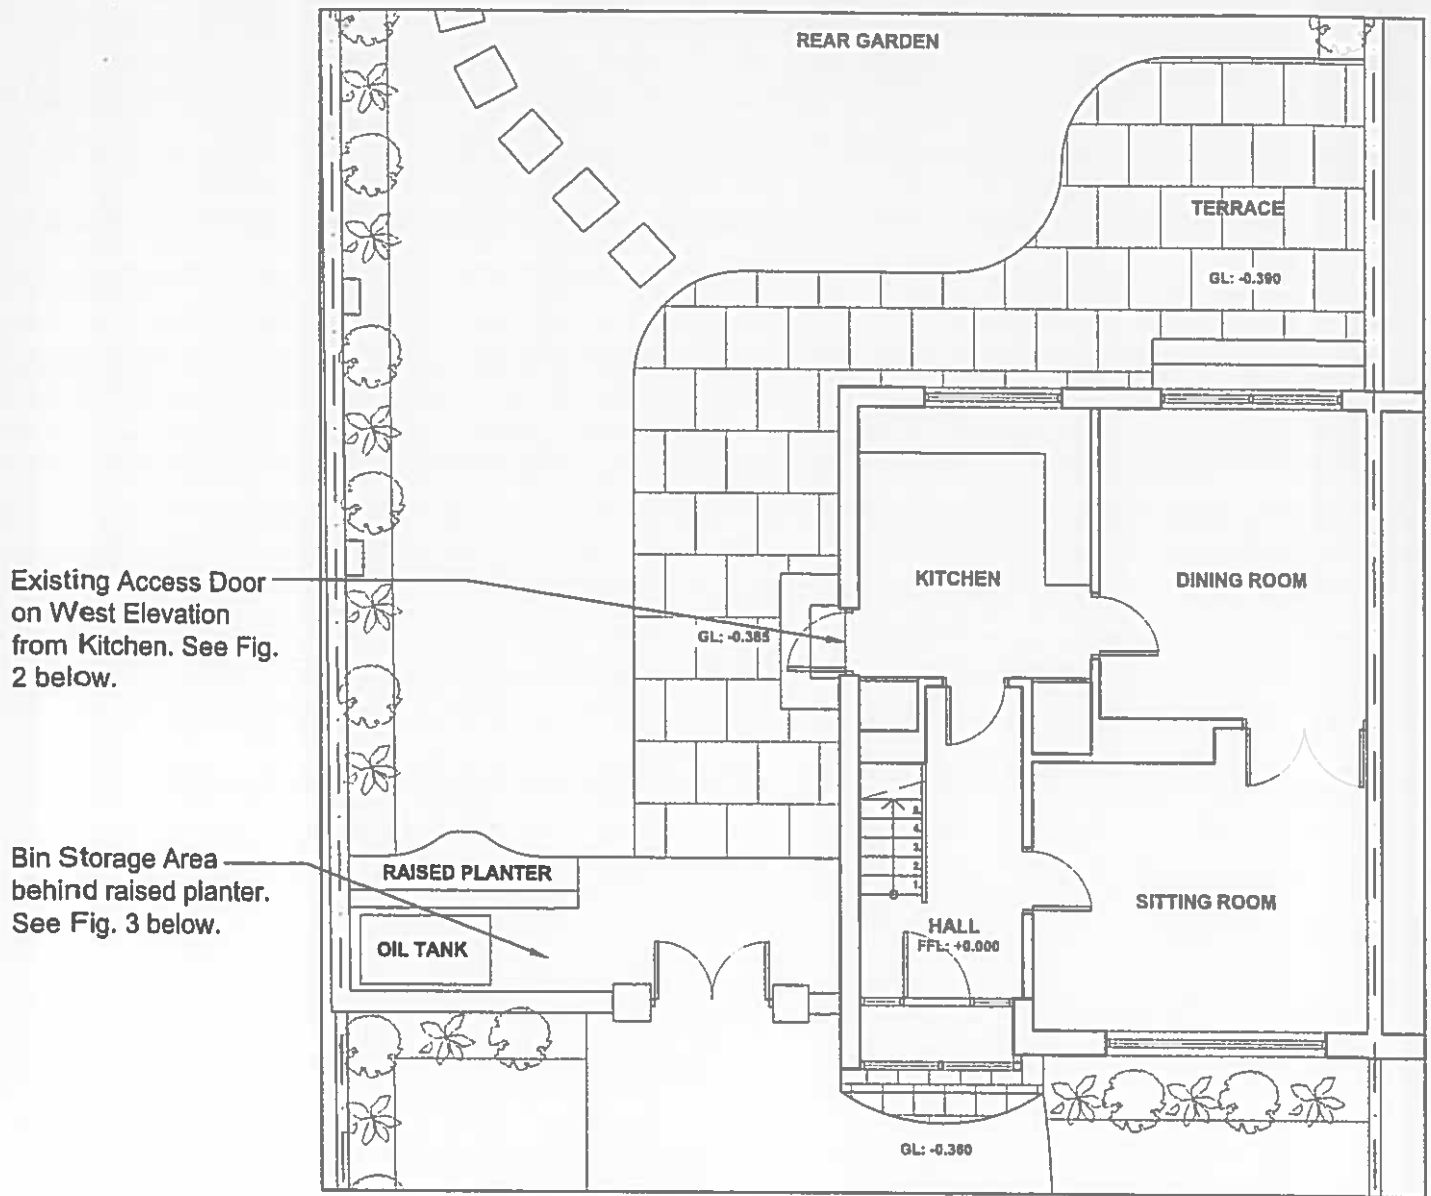

I hope you view our appeal application favourably based on the above information. Should you require any additional information as part of this appeal please do not hesitate to contact me.

Kind Regards,

Aoife Phelan
