

Brilliant Wiffen smashes the European record

By MARK GALLAGHER

DANIEL WIFFEN became the first Irish swimmer to break a European record at the national winter championships in the National Aquatic Centre yesterday.

The 21-year-old from Co Down clocked 7.25.96 for the 800m freestyle, two seconds under the previous record of Italy's Gregorio Paltrinieri set in 2021. It is also the fastest time in the world this Record breaker: Co Down swimmer Daniel Wiffen year and fourth fastest ever, only two and a half seconds outside the 800m world record. 'I'm very happy, it's obviously a very fast time and number one in the world this year,' said a delighted Wiffen. 'I know that I would be sub 7.30 and I was aiming for a top ten in the world but I think this puts me fourth. I knew since I was going to Ireland I would do the 800m and 400m but I thought 800m could be my quickest and better event, because it is what I qualified in the Olympics for. It was nice for the home crowd.'

In the past fortnight, Wiffen has broken the Irish record three times in the 800m freestyle while last weekend he swam a new 1500m Irish record of 14:14.95 in the Scottish Short-course championship that was the fastest time in the world this year.

Wiffen returns to the pool tomorrow for the 400m freestyle heats.

The first Irish record of the meet went to Ards Swimming Club this morning when they broke their own 4x50m Freestyle Irish Club relay record. Ellie McCartney, Grace Davison, Zophia Quigley, and Victoria Catterson combined for a time of 1:44.03.

In the 100m Breaststroke Eoin Corby and Darragh Greene were the only two under the minute mark to take gold and silver, Corby touching first in 58.43 ahead of Greene in 59.93.

Corby then went on to win a second national title in the 100m Individual Medley.
